About Dr. Kyler William Barkley

Dr. Kyler Barkley is a native west Texan raised on his family's farm and ranch in the northern panhandle. After graduating from Texas Tech with his undergraduate degree, he continued on to medical school at the University of Texas Medical School in Houston. He then completed his internal medicine training at UT Southwestern in Dallas prior to specializing in cardiology and interventional cardiology at Baylor Scott & White Hospital in Temple.

Dr. Barkley is certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine with sub-specialty certification in Cardiovascular Disease.

Dr. Barkley's clinical interests include: coronary disease treatment and prevention, peripheral arterial disease, percutaneous aortic valve replacement therapy, heart failure management, as well as general cardiology.

He and his wife are happy to return home to Lubbock and they look forward to raising their two young children here.
